STACE TELLS OF NEW MICHIGAN

B. OF T. MEMBERS AND WIVES ENJOY MONTHLY BANQUET

At the regular monthly banquet of the members of Grayling Board of Trade and their ladies, Arthur W. Stace of Ann Arbor gave an address on "The New Michigan." Mr. Stace is director of the Michigan Public Utilities Information Bureau with offices in Ann Arbor. The speaker pictured Michigan as it passed thru its early history and on thru to the present time when our once "burdened" timber lands have passed and the cutover denuded waste lands now blossom out into nature's paradise and the nation's playground.

The banquet was sponsored by the members of the Junior class of Grayling high school and consisted of Danish meat balls, mashed potatoes and gravy, bagas, vegetable salad on lettuce, hot rolls, jelly, pickles, apple pie and coffee. The young people deserve a lot of credit for the excellent menu and for the able manner in which they served it. In spite of the fact that the food was cooked outside of the banquet hall everything came to the table piping hot and delicious. Red, white and blue was the color scheme for the decorations and the room and tables were very attractive.

T. W. Hanson, president of the B. of T. presided over the program, the first number of which was a vocal trio by Mrs. Clippert, Mrs. Milnes and Mr. Webb. Appropriate to the day—Lincoln's birthday—they sang for their first song "Way down upon the Swane River," which was delightfully received. They responded with a duet by the two ladies.

The New Michigan
Mr. Hanson introduced Mr. Stace saying that for a number of years he served as a writer for the Booth Syndicate of Michigan newspapers and that now he was publicity director for the Michigan Public Utilities Information Bureau.

Mr. Stace stated that we are living in a favored state, famed for its 1600 to 1700 miles of coast line; its 6,100 lakes; thousands of rivers, its many hills and valleys and its broad expanse of wilds, together with its agriculture and manufacturers.

First to come to Michigan were the missionaries; next the traders. Furs was the first trading in Michigan. Finally settlers came and built homes in the region of Monroe and gradually extended their settlements deeper into Michigan. Everywhere there were vast forests—35 millions of acres of woods. Then the great burden was to get them cut down and removed. The trees were considered an enemy to battle with.

Setters also went into the prairie regions of Illinois, Indiana, Missouri and Iowa and soon there came the cry for timber for building homes and the big Michigan forests provided the need. Lumber built up Michigan and was the magnet that drew the railroads, invited manufacturers. Iron and copper ores were discovered in upper Michigan.

Now the lumbering is about gone; iron and copper mines are about gone. Michigan appeared to be in a bad way when these great resources began to wane. The natural expectancy was that the farmer would follow the woodsmen but it developed that lands that grew great pines were not adapted to intensive farming.

All thru the lumbering days forest fires ate ravenously into the cutover timber lands. Everywhere there was the spectacle of devastated fire-ridden landscapes. The people rebelled against the scenery of the north. But now the scene has changed. These regions have been given a chance and everywhere there is a covering of new growth that is refreshing and beautiful.

Northern Michigan had no good roads. The coming of the automobile has caused Michigan to build roads. Over $300,000,000.00 have been spent on roads and now nearly every region is accessible to travel and a new world has been discovered. Beautiful lakes and rivers, hills, valleys and even islands that had hitherto been unnoticed now are inviting the whole world to enjoy their beauties and pleasures.

Autos also revolutionized social progress. Industrial Michigan provides more labor at better wages. No longer does the family take only occasional vacations but instead the family now spend the week ends amidst the charms of the north country.

Michigan has changed. We are in a new era. The discoveries of vast fields of valuable limestones have brought us another wealth. And we are discovering renewed game covers where there were once charred lands. Wild game of all kinds is increasing and the sighting of wild deer in the woods is creating a thrilling enthusiasm among the tourists who come to the north. Even the beaver is coming back strongly.

And the snow and ice that we once condemned now provides that winter pastime and recreation for which the world is seeking. You people here in Grayling are fortunate. Here is the snug winter climate and the snows that make winter sports possible and with exception of the mountains, and you have high hills, there is here the natural conditions that should provide a winter playground the equal of Lake Placid. Put the people of Grayling on skis and all of Michigan will want to come here to play too.

Mr. R. A. Wright who is the secretary and manager of the AuSable Furs, Inc., an organization operating at Simpson lake, gave a resume of the things his Company was accomplishing there. A synopsis of his address will be published next week.

Pres. Hanson closed the talks with a few remarks. He urged the addition of more members hoping to have enrolled an even 100 before the next monthly banquet. He gave a resume of what the Board had been doing during the past month, which included the putting on of the three day winter sports carnival. He had just returned from a week spent in Grand Rapids, Lansing and other places and he stated that the outside communities knew about our winter sports.

When in Lansing Supt. Hoffmaster of the State parks had assured him that fads would be forthcoming for the construction of the proposed buildings and highways for the Hartwick Memorial park.

The program was very pleasantly closed with a vocal trio by Mrs. Clippert, Mrs. Milnes and Mr. Webb. Many remained to enjoy dancing and cards.

School Notes

(Written by the students of the English classes.)

In a thrilling basket ball game, the premier attraction in High School ball for Grayling this season, Coach Cushman's High school five, clashing with Gaylord at the local gym last Friday night, in the last few minutes of play, snatched a well earned victory right out of Gaylord's hands and sent the Pinnacle City boys home somewhat dejected on the small end of a 19-20 count.

We wish to say that if you missed this athletic struggle that you missed half of your life, but you might possibly get a repetition of it at the tournament in March, but to get more for your money would be an absolute impossibility.

The game started out fast and stayed that way until the final whistle blew. To begin things, Grayling took the lead by drawing a margin of 5 points and running it to 13 for the first half, Gaylord counting only six.

In the second half Gaylord came back strong and it was nobodys game from then on. In the last few minutes of play Stinchcomb drew 2 points ahead of the locals, then Harrison got a short one tying the score, Stinchcomb drew a penalty and Fitzpatrick caged it, drawing ahead of the locals again by one point. It remained that way for a few seconds and when the game was in its final seconds Wylie caged a neat long tom, spelling defeat for Gaylord.

"Rudy" Harrison, playing his second game of basket ball for the local High School was high-point man for Grayling and Fitzpatrick for Gaylord.

In the prelims, the Grayling girls smothered Gaylord 46-14, and the Second Boys team beat Gaylord 25-15.

The First Team lineups:

Grayling 20      Gaylord 19
Neal      Fitzpatrick
Stinchcomb      Andrews
Harrison      Shields
Wylie      Schrue

Referee: McMurray of Saginaw.

The games were highly enjoyable, made more so by the songs and yell given by the pupils under the efficient leadership of Yellmaster Mr. Hill. It showed fine school spirit and true sportsmanship.

The receipts from the Grayling-Gaylord basket ball game last Friday night amounted to $145.25. Expenses $36.76.

Christ or Chaos

It is a rather startling fact to have no less a personage than H. G. Wells assert that we are witnessing today a race between education and catastrophe. Or to hear Dick Sheppard of England say "it is a race between catastrophe and Christianity."

The facts in the case may be expressed in one sentence and that is that the Christ spirit must be made to rule in human relationships or we face the tragedy of a race or class war, or both. We must either achieve a more Christian civilization or perish.

And just there, let us ask ourselves what we can do about it. On Sunday, we can at least vote in favor of the existence of a Christian church in the community. Each Sunday that we do not attend, when we can attend, is to vote against the program of the church and in favor of a churchless community.

How are you going to vote next Sunday?

INDIES DEFEAT GAYLORD V. F. W.

It was a close, fast game that was played between Grayling Independents and Gaylord Veterans of Foreign Wars basket ball teams here Wednesday night. Grayling won by a score of 43 to 38.

Grayling got away with a lead that ran the score up to 19 to 9 at the end of the half. Gaylord came back strong in the third quarter and tied the score and in the last quarter took the lead. Then the fight was on and personal fouls were called against both teams and each side had players returned because of four personals.

Grayling was playing a strong game and made some clever passes some of which resulted in points, while the home team seemed, for a few minutes to be unable to stop them. Grayling was doing some clever passing but failed to make their shots. However before the last quarter was well along Grayling steadied down and did some real playing and put across their worthy opponents on the short end of the score.

Robertson and Wilson lead in the scoring for Grayling, while "Billy" Johnson a former Grayling boy, was the star for Gaylord. The Grayling lineup was Cushman and Robertson, forward; Wilson, center; Hanson and Milnes, guards.

GOODFELLOWSHIP CLUB HONORS MRS. R. H. GILLETT

Monday afternoon the ladies of the Goodfellowship club gave a very delightful luncheon for the pleasure of Mrs. R. H. Gillett who has been a member of the club for a number of years and is now leaving Grayling.

The luncheon was served at Shoppenagons Inn and the places at the long table at which the guests were seated were marked by St. Valentine place cards, the other decorations being in keeping with that holiday.

The remainder of the afternoon was spent at the home of Mrs. Henry Bauman. Mrs. M. A. Bates was winner in the contest with which the ladies were entertained. Mrs. Gillett receiving the guest prize. Guests from out of town were Mrs. Albert Poehl, from Detroit, Miss Wolff and Miss Teige of Grand Rapids.

WOMAN'S CLUB NOTES

Regular meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Eva Joseph, Monday evening, Feb. 11th.

Roll call and business.

Miss Vella Hermann read a short sketch of the life and works of William Vaughan Moody. A short program was presented by three of the members, which was greatly enjoyed, after which refreshments were served by the hostess.

Since the beginning of the Club year the club has added several new members, among whom are the Misses Helen Estee, Rosalie Lewis, Eva Dorr, Clarissa Dago, Doris Quackenbush, Mrs. R. M. Bogue, Mrs. LaVere Cushman, and Mrs. R. L. Barrus.

TWO SCHOOLS WIN HEALTH GAMES

Health games have been awarded by the Michigan Tuberculosis Association to two Crawford county schools as prizes for selling $5.00 or more worth of seals in the recent Christmas seal sale.

Children in each school were divided into two groups, forming teams which competed in selling the seals. A day by day record of the standings was kept by coloring in double-barred crosses on a chart prepared for this purpose.

Schools winning awards, with the names of teachers directing the sale, are: Sigsbee, District 4, Miss Mary Vance; and Maple Forest Township, District 3, Mrs. Charles Owens.

The Juniors are preparing their play, "The Ghost Bird" to be given some time next month. Watch for the date.

FIRE DESTROYS PRICE'S GROCERY

The Andrew Price grocery store building at Roscommon was completely destroyed by fire late last Friday afternoon. The major part of the stock and fixtures were saved.

The fire started in the second story of the building and was caused by an overheated stove. There was to have been a basketball game there that night and some of the members of the team had started a fire in the heating stove and went away without shutting off the drafts. The fire got so hot that it is presumed that it set fire to the woodwork and soon the whole upstairs was on fire.

The fire was discovered by a neighbor and upon investigation Mr. Price says he found the fire creeping along the woodwork. However before he could get a pail of water the whole upstairs was a mass of flames.

By heroic effort and the help of the citizens the most of the grocery stock and store fixtures were removed. Mr. Price says that he estimates his loss at about $80,000 which is fully covered by insurance. He has re-opened for business in the cement block building next to the Roscommon bank where he says he will have a better store than ever before. Some remodeling will have to be done including a plate glass front.

Grayling fire department responded to the call for help at the Andrew Price fire at Roscommon and did effective work in helping to protect adjoining property.

GIRLS NORTHERN MICH. CHAMPS

Mrs. Bogue's girls high school basket ball team are claiming the championship of northern Michigan. They finished the season last week with Gaylord with a string of seven victories and no defeats.

We understand that Whittemore girls team also claim to have won every game. A challenge was issued to them which they failed to accept thus they must concede the honors belong to Grayling.

Out of seven games our girls made a total of 257 points, an average of about 39 points per game. The total points against them for the season is 104, an average of about 15 per game.

Grayling has had a number of excellent girls teams. This year is no exception and, we doubt if there is a high school team anywhere in Michigan that can defeat them. Mrs. Bogue is to be congratulated upon the success of her girls. Also Capt. Elizabeth Matson deserves credit for her able management. The latter and Clara Buggy as forwards played stellar basket ball. In fact every player on the team contributed a lot toward the team's successful season. The regulars on the lineup are as follow:

Forwards—Elizabeth Matson and Clara Buggy.

Center—Margaret Warren.

Side center—Mary Esther Schumann.

Guards—Lillian and Elizabeth Swanson.

CHARLES HORTON WAS RESIDENT OF FREDERIC 52 YEARS

Funeral Held Wednesday In Frederic

Charles Z. Horton, a resident of Frederic since 1877, passed away at his home in that village Monday, February 4th after a lingering illness of several years duration, his death being hastened by an attack of the flu.

Mr. Horton was born May 28, 1853 in Rochester, Oakland county, Michigan, where he remained until he had grown to manhood when he started out to see the north country, which at that time was a wilderness. It was at that time that he came to Frederic, which was in 1877 and bought a homestead which is the old Horton farm three miles west of Frederic. This territory was then a dense forest and only a footpath lead to the home over the hills.

The year following his locating in Frederic he was married to Delphia M. Wood of Grand Blanc, Genesee county, who with two sons, George and Harry survive. One daughter Phyllida passed away in 1891. Others surviving are seven grand children: Mrs. Allen Benjamin, Walled Lake, Mich.; Mrs. Katherine Harmer, Mrs. Francis McClelland, Northville; Lida, James, Charles and Marie Horton of Frederic and eight great grandchildren.

The funeral was held in Frederic last Wednesday many of the old pioneer residents of Grayling, who came to this county about the time Mr. Horton did, attending to pay their last respects to the deceased.

We wish to thank the friends and neighbors of Maple Forest, Grayling and Frederic for the helping hand and the flowers sent at the time of the death of our loving husband and father.

WHAT DOES COOK KNOW ABOUT FISH HATCHING?

While we may have a lot of confidence in policies and methods of the State Department of Conservation, still we cannot help but be puzzled at their action in the appointment of A. B. Cook, Jr. for superintendent of fish hatcheries to assist Fred Westerman. Just what does Mr. Cook know about the hatching and the culture of fish?

The Department indicates that "this is a step toward the development of more efficiency in the fish hatcheries. Cook has until recently been an instructor in the high school of Ionia. At present he is making a tour of Pennsylvania, New York and another state obtaining information as to the manner in which the hatcheries are conducted there. A report says that he will take charge of the Michigan hatcheries about March 1st.

In announcing the employment of Cook, the department said his addition to the force is to give Westerman more time for general fish work and study. It will relieve him of the active supervision of the hatcheries and give him time for other work.

It strikes us that fish hatching and fish culture requires a lot of technical training that can only come from long study and experience. We know there is real science in fish culture. The late Dwight Lydell, superintendent of Comstock Park hatchery was acclaimed the best bass culturist anywhere in America. We recall a visit we made at the Comstock hatchery about 18 years ago where we met Mr. Lydell and he took the trouble to answer a lot of our damsel questions and told us a lot about bass. In reply to our inquiry we recall that he said he had spent many years in the study of bass and that he had watched them for hours under varied conditions. He was a real fish culturist and made a great success of his work. It took him years to gain the knowledge that made him an expert and an authority in that work.

It may be possible that Mr. Cook has had this training and is able to take over the superintendence of the state hatcheries with real ability. He may possibly be able to tell hatchery superintendents many things they don't know. If so, then we believe he is the right man in the right place. If not, then we can't see the big reason for his appointment. If the Department thinks he can tour the hatcheries of a few states and gain the knowledge that a general superintendent should possess we believe they are all wet. It does seem as though there must be someone among the many hatchery employees or superintendents who might be in line for promotion and who should possess a knowledge that would make his service a big help to the hatcheries.

We believe that lack of knowledge on the part of anyone in authority is a great hindrance to those whose efforts they would direct. Frequently ideas and methods are advocated that have been discarded as impractical and useless many years ago, and there is a duplication of experiment that is costly and is without desired results. Experience is one of the watchdogs against such errors. We cannot help but question whether or not Mr. Cook is the right man to take charge of the important work of the fish hatcheries of the state. Could he successfully manage any one hatchery? We would like to know just what we are going to get from Mr. Cook in the line of work for which the state appears to be grooming him.

THE FIRST AMERICAN

ON a lonely night, one hundred twenty years ago, February 12, 1809, angels hovered over a rude pioneer cabin in the heart of the Kentucky hills.

Inside the cabin a young mother lay pressing her firstborn to her loving breast, while mystic, unseen host, sung for joy over the coming to earth of this babe, destined to become our first American.

No holier or more humble spot could have been found at the birthplace of Abraham Lincoln. Frontier of civilization, outpost of liberty, God in His wisdom chose this hallowed place as the beginning of that long and weary way to a new freedom and a new world destiny.

Interesting battles loom ahead over proposed changes in penalties in measures which now bring offenders under the ban of the criminal code.

The anti-saloon league leaders demand that the liquor laws remain as they are, making life sentences mandatory for fourth convictions.

Senator Miner of Owosso has introduced a bill providing a minimum penalty of five years for any liquor law violation. This bill is said to have the backing of the anti-saloon organization.

Representative Miles M. Callaghan's bill providing an appropriation of $25,000 for construction of "4-H" camp at Gaylord for the northern section of the lower peninsula passed by the House Wednesday afternoon, was given the title of the "Callaghan Bill" and now goes to the Senate for its approval.

Intensive study is being made by many members of both houses of the various money-raising propositions advanced for Governor Green's proposed reconstruction program for state institutions.

Speaker Ming's proposed 2% income tax seems to have the lead in the discussion, although as yet neither of the measures have been presented in either house.

Rep. Harnett's bill to permit reading of the bible in public schools which was reported out by his committee, was on general orders referred to the committee on education.

The opposition to it is that it puts it up to the office of the state superintendent of public instruction to sort out the portions to be read and that his office would be swamped by demands from all churches and creeds to have their particular choice approved.

As there is now nothing to prevent the bible being read if the district so desires makes it seem likely that it will be deemed unnecessary legislation and be smothered in committee.

Rep. Chas. Deland asks in resolution that the office of Secretary of state Haggerty be investigated in relation to the branch offices in Highland Park and Hamtramck. Generally conceded to be a part of the scrap between Detroit political factions.

Senator Arthur Wood has a bill proposing sale of the Pontiac asylum, claiming the buildings are old and should be replaced by new ones, and that the land now occupied is too valuable to be used for such purposes.

Conservation and fish and game committees will hold a public hearing Tuesday, a legal holiday, on proposed conservation matters.

Rep. Snow of Kalamazoo has a bill which would prevent hunting on a public highway or within 150 feet of such highway.

The medical bill proposing certain educational requirements of any person engaged in the practice of healing made its appearance in the Senate Monday night. The measure, said to have originated in the State Health Department, was introduced by Sen. Engle. Examinations are proposed to be held by a board of nine, to be appointed by the governor.

A proposal to re-establish the teachers' retirement fund is up for consideration in the Senate, being reported favorably by the Senate committee on education and passed by the Senate. Fireworks are in prospect before the bill gets through the House.

Capital punishment has attracted less comment and discussion so far during the present session than for many years, but there is still time for the pyrotechnics to start when various bills now in committee come out on the floor. Public hearings will probably be arranged for the day.

MICH. LEGISLATIVE
NEWS LETTERMichigan Press Association,
Lansing Bureau

"Farmers' Week", bringing thousands of agriculturists from all sections of the state, combined with the annual meeting of the state association of supervisors and other rural organizations, has seriously interfered with legislative work this week. Wednesday, too, was practically a legal holiday for the legislators, many of whom beat it for home in order to attend their county conventions. And queer as it seems, some politicians who make no claims to being farmers have also spent a goodly portion of the week here, hobnobbing with the farmers, the supervisors, the grangers, the farm bureau members and others who have made Lansing their Mecca during Farmers' Week.

The Dykstra bill, proposing a three-way split of the automobile weight tax money, by which one-third would go to cities, villages and townships, was the occasion of a public hearing before the transportation committee Wednesday evening. Representatives of the Michigan League of Municipalities were present and argued for the bill, along with several representatives of municipalities independent.

Several telegrams were received by representatives urging their support of the bill, which will probably be considered by the committee early the coming week. The opposition to the bill comes largely from the rural districts, the rallying cry being "Wayne county will hog half of the money." Wayne comes back with, "Why not? We pay in half of it." But the bill also has many supporters from the rural regions, although the supervisors' association resolved against it.

The chairmen of the conservation committees of both Senate and House were at Madison, Wisconsin, this week, in conference with members of similar committees of the sister state, in an effort to collaborate in the framing of uniform measures for both states, which have so much in common.

Interesting battles loom ahead over proposed changes in penalties in measures which now bring offenders under the ban of the criminal code.

Divorce would be almost a dead

proposition in Michigan under a bill introduced by Rep. Haught of Lansing. Seven years of desertion by husband or wife or seven years in prison by either party would be required. Provision for permanent separation is, however, provided for. There will be some oratory if the bill is reported out of committee.

A lively scrap between Senator Jankowski of Detroit and R. N. Holzapfel of the anti-saloon league developed in the senate chamber Tuesday afternoon, after Jankowski had withdrawn a bill he had introduced because he claimed Holzapfel had been lobbying for the bill. Hard words passed, but blows were avoided.

Governor Green talked to the State Association of Supervisors during their annual meeting here in favor of his income tax proposal, but after much discussion the organization declined to endorse the proposition.

Rep. Herbert Reed of Copemish proposes a constitutional amendment which would do away with spring elections, providing that all township officers be elected for two years at a general biennial fall election.

Amendment proposed to be given to the state to vote on at the next November election. Want to do away with "town meeting"?

Governor Green's latest proposition is to make a permanent income tax, first to rehabilitate state institutions and later to help out on general taxes. No bill has as yet been introduced, but it is among the various finance propositions which keep the legislators arguing during hours when the solons are not in session.

Rep. Milton R. Palmer, who introduced the proposal for a constitutional amendment at the last session, says the idea back of his proposition for salary increases was to revolutionize the entire system of legislation. Under present conditions the legislature meets with a large percentage of new members, takes time to get acquainted and learn the ropes, then about the time it gets thoroughly organized, it adjourns, sine die. Mr. Palmer's proposed plan is to have commissions of members appointed, each commission to have a specific task in constructive legislation, such as revision, simplification and codification of existing laws, study of state problems, and recommendation of new constructive measures. Such commissions to report at a special session or to the next regular session. The proposal has a lot of merit.

Both houses adjourned Friday until Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

NEW SEWAGE PLANT
AT CAMP GRAYLING

The sewage system now being installed at Camp Grayling includes the installation of a new water system, i.e., new wells, pumping stations, a new and larger reservoir on higher ground and located on the hills south of the 125th Infantry and the 182nd F. A. camps. This water system is expected to furnish the additional water required for the flushing of the sewer system and for the additional requirements which the camp has now gone to the President for approval.

The contract for this installation was made last June. The funds being authorized by the United States government. The work was started early in September 1928 and was carried on as long as weather conditions would permit. It is expected that the contract can be completed early in 1929 so that the system will be in operation for the 1929 camp.—Michigan National Guardsman.

MANCELONA HERALD WANTS COUNTIES TO FORM CONSOLIDATION

The discussion of the merger of many of the counties in northern Michigan has been in the headlines for the past several weeks, though it is now a dead issue as far as our solons are concerned, who have shelved the proposition.

An item appearing in the Mancelona Herald last week, however, will prove interesting, and is as follows:

"If Antrim and Otsego were to be joined, just think of the scrap between the counties as to which name would be retained. The same would be true of any other pair of counties."

"The only way to surmount what would probably be the greatest difficulty would be to make the county organization read "Antrim-Otsego County," the same as legislative districts are named, and leave each county to retain its name otherwise."

"If Antrim and Otsego should be joined, then the matter of the location of the combined county seat would be next in order and Mancelona would just naturally become the county seat of Antrim-Otsego county. Not so bad."

Antrim and Otsego counties would be joined, the teachers' retirement fund is up for consideration in the Senate, being reported favorably by the Senate committee on education and passed by the Senate. Fireworks are in prospect before the bill gets through the House.

Capital punishment has attracted less comment and discussion so far during the present session than for many years, but there is still time for the pyrotechnics to start when various bills now in committee come out on the floor. Public hearings will probably be arranged for the day.

THE WEEK IN WASHINGTON

(By Congressman Roy O. Woodruff.)

The Naval Construction Bill, providing for the construction of 15 light cruisers of 10,000 tons each, carrying armament of 9 eight-inch guns and one aircraft carrier of 13,500 tons displacement, has been favorably disposed of in both the House and Senate this week. The bill now awaits the President's signature. Under its provisions the entire 15 cruisers would be completed within a time limit of three years.

The Senate added an amendment proposed by Senator Borah declaring it to be the sense of Congress that the President should attempt to negotiate treaties with the principal maritime nations, if possible before the coming disarmament conference in 1931, to regulate conduct of belligerents and neutrals in war at sea, and this amendment was agreed to by the House when it voted to pass the bill.

Much has been said in the newspapers to the effect that the building of these ships would give the United States superiority over the fleet of Great Britain. As a matter of fact, with this program entirely completed we would not be anywhere near having an equality with that country. If President Coolidge's original request had been accepted by Congress when he requested 25 cruisers and 3 airplane carriers we would not in that event have been on a parity with them.

It is interesting to note that notwithstanding the fact that we are supposed to be at a basis of equality with England as regards battleships, she now has a superiority of something like 96,000 tons in this particular craft, and their newest battleships are of more recent design than any possessed by the United States.

Every one of the ships to be built under the bill which has passed Congress this week will be used to replace vessels that have been obsolete for many years. Any good American, it seems to me, should agree that if we are to send our men to sea in ships, the ships in which we send them should be as good as those of any other nation, and that we should give to these men every possible measure of protection. This is what we propose to do in the present Naval Construction Bill.

Scores of letters from the District of Columbia have come to me of late favoring the adoption of the Norbeck-Andres Game Refuge Bill, appropriating funds with which to establish sanctuaries for migratory birds, fish and fur-bearing animals.

This measure has been pending in Congress for something like six years, and it will be gratifying to all nature lovers and conservationists to learn that the House passed it unanimously the afternoon of February 9th. As it had already been passed by the Senate, it now goes to the President for approval.

Under the provisions of the bill, appropriations for the purchase of land in every state in the Union will be made available as follows: $75,000 for 1930; $200,000 for 1931; $600,000 for 1932; $1,000,000 per year thereafter for seven years, after which time the appropriation bill will continue at the rate of $200,000 per year for

Interesting Events In Grayling 23 Years Ago

INTERESTING ITEMS OF NEWS GATHERED FROM THE FILES
OF THE AVALANCHE OF 23 YEARS AGO.

Grayling, February 15, 1906

Mrs. Frank Ayres was visiting in Lansing and Bay City the first of the week.

Mrs. Ida Hammond of Bay City was in town over Sunday visiting relatives and friends.

Joe L. Larson made a business trip to Bay City the first of the week, he returned Wednesday.

Geo. Mahon has got his shop located in Chris Hanson's building, in front room on second floor.

A sad accident occurred here last week, resulting in the death of Mr. and Mrs. Fairbank's little boy. He tipped a hot pot of coffee onto one of his legs, which burned a place about three inches long, but was not considered serious, but he began suffering and died the second day after.

W. F. Brink sold twenty-five acres of land on Sec. 18, to David R. Spence, Monday. He will make a home of it, before he decides to go south for the fourth time, which we do not think he will do. "Three times and out."

Miss Minnie Forbes of Knightstown, Indiana, arrived here Tuesday, to the delight of Grandpa "Park," as well as to Mrs. Forbes who has been seriously ill for the past three weeks, but is now confidently thought to be on the straight road to recovery which is good news to her many friends.

Tramps, Cranks and Dudes at the Presbyterian church Tuesday evening were presented in a very picturesque and graphic manner by Rev. E. H. Peters, and thoroughly enjoyed by those present. The wild storm of wind and snow kept many away, who otherwise would have filled the church, as we hope it will be when he comes in the near future.

Another happy meeting at the home of A. Mortenson in Beaver Creek last Wednesday by the "Old People's Society." A delicious dinner was given ample justice, and the fine programme which had been prepared by the Secretary, consisting of reading, recitation and music was fully carried out and thoroughly enjoyed. John Love and wife were present and glad they came.

At Bay City, on our way home from Grand Rapids Saturday night, we were pleased to meet Birney Parsons and Frank Canfield, old Grayling boys, now Bay City men. We enjoyed a pleasant reminiscent visit until we reached West Branch, as they were enroute here to visit over Sunday with their sisters, but at that place Canfield was suddenly missing. We looked for him till the train was ready to start, and not being sure whether he had fallen off, or got lost, we left word for sheriff Phelps to look him up, and take care of him until he could send him here. As we saw him on the street Monday, we imagine he was found uninjured, and he looked happy.

The great concert by the "Best Band in Northern Michigan" was as we predicted, an unqualified success. The opera house was well filled, and the music was way up in "G" and called forth unusual applause. The vocal music by our Miss Florence Tromble, and Miss Enloe Bowman, of Spokane, Wash., elicited the highest commendation, and Miss Hadley at the piano was, as usual, all that could be desired.

Gaylord, Mich., Feb. 12.—(Sp.)—The south side of Main street, at Wolverine, was swept away by fire today, causing the loss of nearly $14,000 worth of property, which was partly covered by insurance. The fire originated in the general store of J. Walter Levee from unknown cause and spread rapidly. The loss to the Levee building and stock reached $4,000; Roarbeck & Son, general store, $6,000; Peter Chase, barber, $500, and Mrs. P. E. Hackett, two dwelling houses, $3,000. The postoffice building was considerably damaged.—Detroit Free Press.

Sunday forenoon the alarm of fire called out the town who found the "Coup House" in flames. The firemen were prompt and did heroic work, confining the fire almost entirely to the interior of the main part of the building, which was almost entirely destroyed leaving only parts of the rear wings habitable, which are being used, as there are no vacant rooms in the village. Mrs. Berg, the owner, occupied the center rooms, though most of her furniture was removed, it was terribly demoralized, as was that of her brother, Gideon Croteau, who was on the second floor. Geo. Mahon had the front rooms for a tailor shop, and his tools and stock were removed in much the same condition as the furniture. The loss to Mr. A. McDowell, who occupied the rear wing was confined to the destructive removing of his goods and drenching by water.

There were lively races at the ice rink last Saturday evening, resulting in a tie between Oscar Hanson and Wilfred Laurant with Sigwald Hanmer third. Time 4.52.

The Goodfellowship club met at the home of Mrs. Benkelman this week. After the lesson, a dainty lunch was served, which was as fully enjoyed as the regular work.

Love Rasmussen returned from Mt. Clemens Saturday. He had been using their baths to drive out a severe attack of rheumatism, in which he succeeded, and is ready to resume his place as filer in the mill.

Charles Amidon has been enjoying a visit from his brother "May" this week, who came over from his home in Traverse City, with his little boy to see the "best town in the state." He used to live here, and is somewhat surprised to see our improvements.

We notice by the Wellington, Ohio Enterprise, notice of the death of Mr. Charles Strong, of Penfield, Ohio, whose beautiful life and character had won for her the loving respect of all who knew her. She was a foster mother to our county clerk James J. Collen, whom she took to her home after the death of his mother, and cared for him as a mother might for six years. Her going is mourned by him as one of his dearest friends.

Lovells Correspondence

Dr. Insley of Grayling, was called to this village Wednesday to attend Dan Owen who fell from the car. He reports no serious injury and that he will soon be able to be about again. Dr. Insley also visited Mrs. Primeau and others who were on the sick list but are now improving.

Dan Owen was put upon the train Friday and went to spend his enforced vacation with his sister at Frederic.

Dr. Underhill and family have returned from a short visit in New York City, and the Dr. has been called back there on business, connected with the coal strike.

Age No Barrier 70 Year Old Man Praises Konjola

Two Bottles Of This Master Medicine
Enabled Him To Start Work
Again

MR. JOHN FLASHER

The records of Konjola, the super-medicine, fairly overflow with splendid experiences. Success is possible because Konjola goes to the very source of the ailment. Konjola aims first to rout the cause, not the effect. Take, for instance, the case of Mr. John Flasher, 502 Jackson street, Big Rapids, Michigan, who sent in the following endorsement:

"For the past few years I have suffered intense agony from rheumatism. As I am 70 years old I little thought I would ever get any relief from my pains. My legs and arms were always swollen and it seemed that my entire body was a solid mass of aches and pains. Because of this I was unable to work.

"I heard about Konjola and decided to give it a trial. Two bottles put me back to work and after completing the third bottle, all my aches and pains had disappeared. I was once again, to all who suffer as I did, as ever. To all who suffer as I did, say, take Konjola."

Konjola is sold in Grayling at the Mac & Gidley drug store and by all the best druggists throughout this entire section.

Maybe some of our pacifists who are so sure Europe will never start trouble with us again would like to offer themselves as hostages on the proposition.

Most Great Positions Developed Are Small, Of Slow, Steady Saving

(By N. W. Straus, President American Society for Thrift.)

There are a great many substantial business men in America today who could tell you interesting stories about how they spent their early years in the accumulation of a few dollars.

Had they continued all their lives to save only the small amounts they were able to lay by at first, they never would have become well-to-do men. But their small savings and the discipline which was necessary to build up these sums, put them in a position to earn more money and occupy more important positions as the years went by.

"I don't think I could live long enough ever to be rich at the rate I would be able to save money."

This sentence in a letter received recently is typical of the viewpoint of many who lack the patience to build up their personal resources through the painstaking methods of thrift. Now and then someone does strike it rich, so to speak, but where one person may gain sudden wealth, a million others, trying the same thing, may lose their last penny.

Look up the histories of most of the large fortunes in America, and you will find that the vast majority were started with small sums of money and grew to fabulous accumulations of wealth through the normal processes of sound business and investment.

The possession of even a small sum of money was necessary before the larger amounts could be built up.

It is always to be remembered that one of the great elements in thrift is patience. It is hard for an ambitious, vigorous person to exercise this rare quality. The temptation always is strong with such persons to take chances and plunge. But patient saving and the slow, steady accumulation of funds will win out in the long run. The great book of human experience is eloquent in its assertions of this fact.

Shortage of Choirboys

As a result of the World war Cromford, England, has a choirboy shortage. The vicar says the supply has come to an end because very few children were born in the parish between 1918 and 1919 and for the next three or four years there will be no boys to lead the services. The church council will introduce choirgirls for the first time.

Spot Forever Famous

In American History

Boston's famous Beacon hill acquired that name in 1634 when King Charles commanded the Massachusetts colony to surrender its charter and annulled all land titles. The whole of New England suddenly found itself partitioned among a favored few in the mother country, and the thumb of a royal governor bore down hard. At the head of a commission holding the powers of life and death over the colonists was an archbishop who had acquired considerable reputation as an heresy hunter. The colony was only four years old, but in no uncertain spirit it rebelled and soon after John Endicot's sword had slashed the red cross from the royal emblem at Salem a fort was erected at Castle Island in Boston harbor. Citizens drilled earnestly on the common and in the small towns around. As a means of quick communication a beacon was erected on the highest eminence of the capital—and that till it was named, for as long, probably, as America endures.—Detroit News.

Printer Also Had a

Proposition to Make

It seems that a printer somewhere down in Texas got slightly peeved at a letter from a doctor who wanted bids on several thousand letterheads and statements, different sizes, different grades of paper and printed in various colors; with the request that the forms be kept standing for possible reprint orders.

So Mr. Printer diagnosed the case carefully and answered something in this manner:

"Am I in the market for bids on one operation for appendicitis—one, two, and five-inch incision, with and without nurse. If appendicitis is found to be sound, want quotations to include putting same back and canceling order. If removed, successful bidder is expected to hold incision open for about sixty days, as I expect to be in the market for an operation for gallstones at that time and want to save the cost of cutting."—Forbes Magazine.

Royal Prussian Miser

Of Frederick of Prussia it is said that "he was great in great things but little in little ones." This remarkable soldier and sovereign, who extended the territory of his states enormously and was the founder of international colonization and the cultivation of vast regions, who opened canals, instituted mortgage banks and mercantile marine companies, would sit in state upon the application of a dancer at the royal opera for a pair of stockings.

And whereas, because of the direct benefit to be derived from such improvement, it appears advisable to assess a portion of the cost against all property abutting on Michigan Avenue within the area to be paved.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I—In New York, Hugh Chaperon, a high-spirited young man, relates a story of a treasure in Constantinople in the existence of which his uncle, Lord Chesby firmly believed. "It is a story of a man named Hugh, uncle of mine, for whom I am named. He is a man of New York. At the death of Hugh and his chum, Jack Nash, learned from Watkins, Lord Chesby, that the two men had been left with a stranger, purporting to be a friend of Hugh. A mysterious telephone message came to the hotel where Hugh was a honored dying victim of an assassin. Before his death he babbled of the treasure and told them he was sent by his master, the Prince of Charaby's body. Hugh and Jack sail for England."

CHAPTER II—In London, Hugh and Jack meet their man, buddy, Nikka Zaranko, famous violinist. They have over some old documents, seemingly having a bearing on the treasure and its location. A hidden room, referred to as "The Prince's Vest," is frequent-ly mentioned.

CHAPTER III—Monte Bilyer, man of shady reputation, but owner of a neighboring estate, calls on Hugh with a story of his own. He is the son of one of them, introduced as "Signor Teodor-echi," an Italian, makes a distinctly unfavorable impression on Jack. Corporation turns up in the Prince's Vest. When the party leaves, Jack asserts his belief that he has found a clue to the blocked-up room.

CHAPTER IV—That night, Jack, accompanied from his master, discovers three men, one of them Teodor-echi, in the library. He calls Hugh and Nikka, and in the light of the invaders, the three men are seen to be the "Invaders." The man who is seen to be sure Teodor-echi is "Toutou," and that the three men were seeking the "Prince's Vest" for a clue to the treasure. He and his friends find the hidden room and in documents telling of the treasure is located in the palace of the Bucoleon in Constantinople.

CHAPTER V—Jack Nash's cousin, Betty King, with her uncle is in Constantinople, and Hugh, Nikka, Jack, and Betty are there. The King is sure Teodor-echi is "Toutou," and that the three men were seeking the "Prince's Vest" for a clue to the treasure. He and his friends find the hidden room and in documents telling of the treasure is located in the palace of the Bucoleon in Constantinople.

CHAPTER VI—The party starts Hugh and Jack sail to Constantinople. They are seen to be Nikka and Jack by land. Nikka persuades his uncle, Waso Mikail, gypsy chief, to accompany them. Mikail is the leader of a tribe, which by reputation is concealed in a house occupied by a gypsy tribe whose leader is Beran Tokajli.

CHAPTER VII—Jack and Nikka don gypsy costumes and with Mikail and his tribe, there they join Hugh, Betty, and the girl's uncle, Vernon King, archeological expert. King has been sent to the Bucoleon, on the site of the old palace of the Bucoleon, which is occupied, as Mikail had told Jack and Nikka, by Hugh and a number of his friends, followers.

CHAPTER VIII—By a clever ruse, Mikail and Jack gain access to Tokajli's house as gypsy refugees from justice, and are made welcome. To their surprise, they find Tokajli knows the secret of the treasure. A beautiful, wild young gypsy girl, Kara, is evidently much impressed by Nikka, and they are actually in the palace of the Bucoleon.

CHAPTER IX

The Big Show Begins

Tokajli herded us through the atrium and up the stairs into the large chamber where he, himself, slept.

"Sit," he ordered roughly, motioning to several stools. "I have something to say. To be frank with you, my lad, I don't want you two for a thieving job. It's something more difficult, and the reward will be in proportion."

Nikka permitted his fingers to caress the hilt of his knife.

"We should enjoy a good killing," he hinted.

"No, no, Glorgi. That will come in time, but whatever else you do, you must keep your knife sheathed in this business. As it happens, the men we are after are worth more to us alive than dead."

"Whatever you say, volvode," answered Nikka equably. "But what about your own men? They're a likely-looking lot."

"Yes, but not so many of them have the gifts I require in this service," retorted Tokajli. "They are clever thieves and fighters, but what I require now is men who can follow and spy."

He bent his brows in a ferocious grimace.

"If you succeed, you are my friends. You shall have rich pickings. But if you will have better leave. Stand foul!"

"Why Threaten?" He Asked Coolly

Nikka dropped his hand again on his knife.

"Why threaten?" he asked coolly.

Tokajli glared at him with the blankly savage menace of an old gorilla.

angrily from the corner of his mouth, snarled out and sat down with Nikka.

In the changing shadows beyond the range of the firelight, children dodged and played unhindered by their elders. High overhead the stars shone like fireflies under a purple vault. And from the spreading mass of Stamboul emerged a gentle hum, the hum of a giant hive, the myriad voices talking, singing, praying, shouting, cursing, screaming. None of the discordant night noises of the West. No whistle-blasts, no shrieking of flat wheels on tortured rails, no honking of motor horns, no clamor of machinery. Only the drone of the hive.

"Heh, girls, come out, shy ones! Let the strangers view your grace, cried Tokajli.

They giggled amongst themselves, and swayed into a group that was as spontaneously instinct with rhythm as an old Greek temple frieze. But suddenly they split apart.

"Kara will dance," they cried. "Let Kara dance for the strangers."

And Kara floated into the circle of firelight like a spirit of the forest. She wore only a scanty maddened skirt and torn bodice. The cloud of her hair tumbled below her waist. Her tiny naked feet barely touched the ground. Slowly she whirled, and the gypsy fiddles caught her time. A man with cymbals clashed an accompaniment. A flute whistled soprano. She increased the tempo; she varied her steps. She was a flower shrinking beneath the grass. She was a dove pursued by a falcon. She was a maiden deserted by her lover. She was a figure hovering above the world.

We who watched her were breathless with the joy of the spectacle, and when she sank to the ground in a little pile of rags and hair as the music ended, I thought she must be worn out. But she bounded up again, breathing regularly, radiating vitality.

"Now I will dance the Knife dance!" she exclaimed. "Who will dance with me?" And before any could answer her, she seized a blazing stick from the fire, and ran around the circle waving it overhead until she came to where Nikka sat. "Ho, Glorgi Bordu, will you dance the Knife dance with me?"

Every eye in the circle was fixed on Nikka, for although I did not know it then, to have refused her invitation would have been a deadly insult, equivalent to a declaration of enmity toward her family and tribe. Similarly, acceptance of it amounted to an admission that he considered her favorably as a wife, without definitely committing him to matrimony.

Nikka did not hesitate. He stepped to her side. She slipped one arm around his waist, and with the other swung her torch in air until it shone sparks over the circle.

"Run!" she cried.

"Run!" echoed Nikka.

And they pranced around the fire while the music commenced an air so fiercely wild that it made the blood tingle to listen to it. Then she flung her torch, and tore free from Nikka's arm. He followed her. She eluded him. Round and round they tore, keeping step the while. Now she accepted him, now she rejected him. At last he turned from her, arms folded, contemptuously unmoved. She wood him with rhythmic ardor. He defied her. She drew her knife; he drew his. Eyes glaring, lips pinched, they circled one another, feinting, striking, leaping, posturing.

"Click!" The blades struck together.

"Click! Click! Click!" went the knifeblades.

"Ho! Ho!" they shouted.

The game was to see how near you could come without cutting. To avoid hurt the dancers required quick eyes and agile bodies. The blades flashed like meteors in the shifting light, wheeling and slashing and stabbing. In the beginning Kara forced the pace. Nikka retired before her, rather than risk doing her harm. But slowly he assumed the mastery. His knife was always at her throat, and active as she was, he refused to be shaken off. She tended desperately, panting now, bright-eyed and flushed. But he pressed her. Their blades clashed, he gave her a twist and her dropped from her hand.

He seized her, forcing her back across his knee, knife upraised to strike, while the fiddles clutched at one's nerves and the cymbals clanged with wicked glee.

"Crash!" boomed a knock on the street door. And rap-rap-rap! it was repeated. Crash! again.

The music stopped. Nikka released his partner, and Kara stood quickly and snatched up her knife, tossing the hair out of her eyes, heedless of the rage that slipped off her shoulders.

Men looked at each other uncertainly. Hands crept to waistbands.

"Heh!" said Tokajli. "Who can it be in such a hurry at this hour?"

Crash! The door resounded under the battering of a pistol butt.

The women and children—all save Kara—withdrew into the shadows. The men gathered together. Tokajli crossed the entrance.

"Less noise there!" he shouted threateningly. "This is a peaceful home."

But his manner changed the moment he opened the wicket. What he said we could not hear, but we saw him quickly turn the lock and throw back a leaf of the door, salamazing low as he stepped aside. Six men burst in, four of them in European clothes, and Nikka and I exchanged a glance of apprehension as we recognized the broad shoulders of their leader and heard his snarling voice.

Toutou LaFlite had arrived. With him were Bilyer, Serge Vassilevich and Ilimi.

"Can I trust nobody to fulfill my orders?" whined Toutou, striding toward the fire. "I tell you to spare no efforts—and I come to find you singing and dancing around a fire! Is that work? Is that carrying out our treaty? But all are the same! My best people fall me!"

His green eyes shone evilly; his hands writhed with suppressed ferocity. Tokajli, having reentered the door, followed him across the courtyard. The gypsy looked unconsciously, but showed no fear.

"Oh, no," she said, releasing him, nevertheless, "you shall be off and have not done!" he retorted. "Was it my fault that you lost track of the two missing ones? As for the English lord and his servant, two of my men have shadowed them day and night."

"And lost them today," snarled Tokajli.

"Lost them for the whole day! Who knows what has been accomplished in that time?"

"You are right there," agreed Tokajli coolly, "and I have just plucked two new men to take their places. One of them is a Frank like yourself; the other is a Tzigan."

"Let me see that Frank," exclaimed Tokajli. "I know many of the Franks who live with the Tziganes."

"Step out, Glorgi Bordu and Jakka," called Tokajli.

They giggled amongst themselves, and swayed into a group that was as spontaneously instinct with rhythm as an old Greek temple frieze. But suddenly they split apart.

"Kara will dance," they cried. "Let Kara dance for the strangers."

And Kara floated into the circle of firelight like a spirit of the forest. She wore only a scanty maddened skirt and torn bodice. The cloud of her hair tumbled below her waist. Her tiny naked feet barely touched the ground. Slowly she whirled, and the gypsy fiddles caught her time. A man with cymbals clashed an accompaniment. A flute whistled soprano. She increased the tempo; she varied her steps. She was a flower shrinking beneath the grass. She was a dove pursued by a falcon. She was a maiden deserted by her lover. She was a figure hovering above the world.

"Heh, girls, come out, shy ones! Let the strangers view your grace, cried Tokajli.

Reading in the county seat paper that unless dog licenses were procured immediately a penalty would be attached, John Mather, of Bengal township, Clinton county, hurried to town and purchased a license tag for the farm house pup. Early Monday afternoon the fire department was called to the home of Louis LaMotte, where a shed in the rear was discovered on fire. The fire was caused from an overheated stove. Three youngsters Clifford Malloy, Edgar Johnson and Leo Lovely each had a puppy and each one was trying to raise the best dog, and as Monday was quite a frosty day the boys decided the temperature in the shed was a little too cold for the puppies so they built a fire in a stove that was in the shed to keep the dogs warm and the fire resulted. The dogs perished much to the dismay and sorrow of the boys.

One of the things for which the new Ford car has already become famous is its exceptionally easy riding qualities over rough roads. Many factors contribute to this, especially the low ratio of unsprung weight to sprung weight, the flexible transverse springs, Houdaille hydraulic shock absorbers, etc., but perhaps none more than the so-called torque tube drive. This principle of taking the thrust from the rear axle was first introduced into automotive practice by the Ford Motor Company on the Model T car and has later been adopted on many of the finest European and American cars including the Lincoln.

The torque tube is a metal housing surrounding the driving shaft. It takes the driving thrust from the rear axle and carries it to the universal joint housing, a point well forward on the chassis so that the car is really pulled rather than pushed over the road. This construction also relieves the rear spring of any function except that of supporting the load. This permits the leaves of the spring to be made flexible and shackled at both ends, resulting in free and normal action and an easy absorption of road shocks.

Radius rods join the torque tube at the forged steel housing of the universal joint adding strength and rigidity, keeping the rear wheels in perfect alignment, and further resulting in improved riding qualities.

If we want this civilization to march forward toward higher economic standards, to moral and spiritual ideals, it will march only on the feet of healthy children. The breeding ground of the gangster is the over-crowded tenement and sub-normal childhood. The antidotes are light and air, food and organized play. The community nurse and the community safeguard to health will succeed far better than a thousand policemen.

An Appreciation

Gaylord, Michigan

February 9, 1929

Dear Mr. Bogue:

I am enclosing check for the tournament. I also wish to express to you again our appreciation of the courtesy extended to us by you and your school. I feel that last Friday evening did more to create a friendly feeling between the two schools than anything done in the past ten years.

I wish you would express the import of this letter to your student body at your next assembly.

Sincerely,

C. B. Hurd.

Grayling High School made a clean sweep of three games from her ancient rival on the north, Gaylord. These games drew a capacity crowd, Gaylord being well represented with about 100 fans. The second team defeated Gaylord Boy Scouts in the first game of the evening by a score of 25-15. This game was a fast contest throughout but the locals took the lead at the start and never lost it.

The Girls team won their 6th straight game by a one-sided score of 46-14. The girls team now stands as one of the best in Northern Michigan, being undefeated.

The first team game, which Grayling won by a score of 19-20, was the best game played on this floor this season. Grayling took the lead at the start of the game and lead at the half by the score of 13-6, but Gaylord came back in the last half and took the lead by one point. In the last minute of play with five seconds to go, Wylie made a long shot from center to win the game.

The Board of Trade banquet put on by the Junior class proved to be a great success. The Juniors received many compliments on their dinner, decorations, etc.

The students in the class deserve praise for the splendid way in which they responded to the call for help.

from the committee in charge. The committee in charge of the dinner deserve special mention for the good work shown in conducting the dinner and carrying out their plans so well. Pauline Johnson, Bell, was shown by the committee in charge of the dinner. The Junior class thanks Mrs. Fahr, Mrs. McLeod, Mrs. Matson, Mrs. Schumann, Mrs. Tromble, Mrs. Clippert, Mrs. Joseph, Mr. Kesseler, Mr. Hanson, Mr. Paige, and Mr. Ford for their kind help in making this event a success. The class also extends thanks to Mr. Dawson, Mr. Schjotz, Connie's grocery, Mr. Petersen, and Mr. Burrows for their donations.

Nearly all of the student body was present at the basket ball game with Gaylord Friday night. Mr. Hill led the yell and surely put some pep into our gang. The Gaylord section was well filled with students and also adults. They had megaphones in their school colors; blue and gold.

Grayling won all three games. The first and second games we won with a large margin but the last game was a hard fought battle from start to finish. Five seconds before the game was ended the score was a tie at nineteen, "Chuck" Wylie dropped a basket, sending the score in our favor—19-20.

Practices on the Junior Class play is going forward rapidly under the direction of Mr. Hill, the Public Speaking teacher.

The Freshmen entertained the Assembly with a very enjoyable program Thursday morning. Merton Burrows did the announcing. The program was as follows: A piano solo by Fern Lovely, two short readings and a piano solo by Alice Mahucke, a vocal solo "The world is waiting for the sunrise" by Miss Quackenbush accompanied by Margaret Warren at the piano. Mr. Bogue talked on School Spirit and Sportsmanship. William Garner in behalf of the Student Council, also gave a short talk on that subject. Mr. Bogue presented Elmer Fenton with a silver loving cup for the highest scholarship average for last year. Mr. Hill lead in school songs and yell.

Elsie Johnson spent the week end at her home in Roscommon.

Grace Parker is back in school again after a brief illness.

Virginia Morrissey, a former student of the Grayling school, has returned to be among us once more. She is a Junior this year.

Who said Grayling didn't have school spirit? They proved it last Friday night when Gaylord played here. One section of the gym was decorated for the Gaylord people in their own colors. On the opposite side, filling nearly all of four sections, were the colors of dear old G.H.S.—green and white. The first real yelling that has been done this year was carried on Friday night. Very good sportsmanship was also shown—no hissing as there formally has been.

The Girl Scouts held a rope tying contest at their meeting last Tuesday evening. It was of great interest to all and the Scouts profited considerably by this pleasant pastime.

The Scouts also held a candy sale and it has helped a great deal towards raising money for the Girls' uniforms to be purchased by the troop this spring. The Scouts also have planned a hike for next Tuesday with a pot luck supper afterwards. This will be their first hike and promises to be great fun for all.

Mr. Bogue has ordered some reference books for the Economics class. We can't do very much until they get here as the course requires a great deal of outside reading.

We are studying "Hamlet" in English Literature class. We find it very interesting.

Questions asked by the members of the General Science class: "Miss Lewis, what would happen if the earth fell down, would it fall in a heap?" "If a man went up above Grayling in an airplane and stayed 100 hours, and the earth kept right on moving, then he came down, would he land in Detroit?" Also the students refuse to believe that men have been able to calculate the distance to the sun, etc. They think that Miss Lewis is just "spoofing" them and told her so.

The cheering for Grayling last Friday night was lead by Mr. Hill. The splendid support of the team by the student body was outstanding and certainly showed Mr. Hill's influence. The Grayling students showed the first support of the team it has shown this year, and everyone hopes to keep this up.

Days absent on account of bad weather is, as we all hope, a thing of the past. But absences are a thing to be remembered by most of us who were members of the sick list.

The American History students have been writing 1500 word essays on the Monroe Doctrine. These essays were all handed in last Friday. This Monroe Doctrine has caused much trouble to the History class. When we finally did get to understand it, we were completely tired of it. We are glad it is all over now. We are now studying about more interesting things—all about Lincoln. It came at the right time, because this month is February.

The scores of the games are:

Grayling 37; Alumnae 9.

Grayling 46; Ogemaw Normal 12.

Grayling 40; Roscommon 10.

Grayling 18; Gaylord 15.

Grayling 24; Roscommon 20.

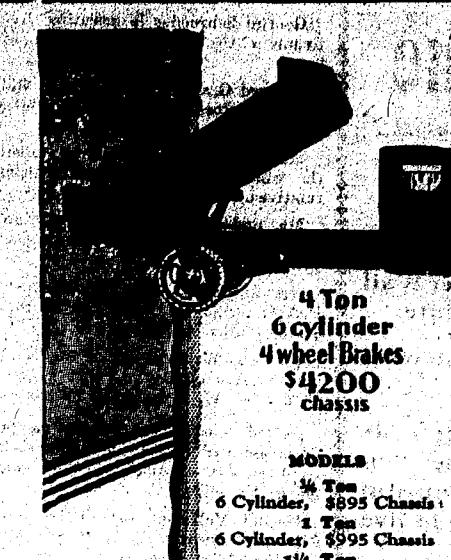

Grayling 46; Ogemaw Normal 24.

Grayling 46; Gaylord 14.

Total Grayling 257; Opponents 104.

The Board of Trade banquet put on by the Junior class proved to be a great success. The Juniors received many compliments on their dinner, decorations, etc.

STEWARTS
of all truckdom

Automotive engineers, truck experts, truck dealers, truck users are hailing the 1929 Stewart as the finest Stewart of them all, by far "America's Greatest Truck Value."

Stewart owners do not figure depreciation on a 2 or 3 year basis. They know by experience that the average life of a Stewart is 5 years or more. There are thousands of 4, 6, 8, 10 and even 12 year old Stewarts in service in more than 600 American cities and 56 foreign countries.

Finer, more beautiful, more powerful, more rugged, the new Stewart stands at the top of all truckdom. Low profit per unit spells greater value than ever before to the Stewart owner.

Stewart Sales Reach New Mark

Stewart sales in 1926 were 41% greater than in 1925. 1927 beat 1926 by 45.7% and now 1928 sales eclipsed them all with a 53% gain over 1927. Learn why! Catalogs gladly mailed upon request.
